

The NATO-Summit 2025 in brief

The first NATO Summit hosted by the Netherlands.

What happens at a NATO Summit?

A NATO Summit is a gathering of heads of state, government leaders and ministers to discuss global developments and their impact on Euro-Atlantic security, present new policy and strengthen ties. Read more on Government.nl/nato2025.

The NATO Summit 2025 in numbers

NATO Public Forum

Parallel to the NATO Summit, 500 heads of state, government leaders, ministers, experts, opinion leaders and young people will attend the NATO Public Forum to discuss security issues affecting NATO.

Communication

Communication about the NATO Summit needs to be timely, clear, cohesive and as transparent as possible. Organising the Summit gives the Netherlands an opportunity to further strengthen our position internationally as a dependable ally. A media centre will be set up in the World Forum building for the approximately 2,000 journalists who will report on the Summit.

Security

With so many government leaders, ministers, delegations and journalists taking part, ensuring the NATO Summit runs smoothly and safely, without disruption, will require robust, focused security measures. A large number of organisations will work closely together to provide the necessary level of security, always doing their best to limit inconvenience to the public.
